PRESENTATION

Republicanas Populares. Centro de conocimientos y acción colectiva, (Centre for Knowledge and Collective Action) presents the National Bulletin 'Vivas Nos Queremos'. ('We want us alive') Our Observatory of Femicides in Colombia is a crucial tool for the formulation of strategies to safeguard women's lives, serving as a source of information for collective action. The rigorous work we have been carrying out since 2017 through our information system has made it possible to make visible the absence of figures updated data and monitoring of femicidal violence in our country.

The consolidation of a State that guarantees the rights of the majority of the population and the strengthening of institutions are essential to eradicate femicidal violence, which is why we want our analysis to contribute to the democratic transition in Colombia, advocating for actions at local, departmental and national levels that eradicate inequalities and create materials that are conducive o women and girls in all their diversity to live in environments free of violence.

We consider it imperative to address femicidal violence from a structural perspective, linking it to militarization, the neoliberal economic system and historical inequalities based on sex, gender, race, ethnicity and age. Our intention is to offer points of view, reflections and analyses that facilitate progress towards freedom, pleasure and autonomy.

Since 2013, we propose the category of analysis "femicidal neoliberal violence", recognizing that in Colombia, it is essential to contextualize violence against women and its relationship with the neoliberal economic model that perpetuates sexual and racial divisions of labor, placing women in precarious economic conditions and in service jobs, and a considerable number of impoverished men, in legal armies, or on the margins of legality as expressed by Jules Falquet, coining the term men in arms, women in services.¹

We are certain that facts and numbers without an understanding of the context do not constitute a contribution to the protection of women's lives. It is urgent to understand the realities in order to contribute with other perspectives that allow the construction of individual, family, community and social actions, but, above all, state actions to eradicate violence against women, and with these, the fabric of impoverishment, militarization, exclusion and discrimination in which femicides take place in the country.

This bulletin presents a detailed follow-up of femicides and attempted femicides, using a feminist, materialist, antimilitarist, anticolonial and people's perspective. With more than 40 categories and 150 tags, we classify information since November 2021, using the Power BI platform to analyze statistics and stories that evidence the escalation of femicidal violence

Between January and October 2024 we recorded \(745\) femicides in Colombia.

Feminicides by department October 2024

In October 2024, there were (69) feminicides reported in twenty-two departments of the country, that is, in 65% of the national territory. Outside the country, there were (2) feminicides of (1) Colombian migrant minor woman in Chicago, United States and (1) in Richmond, Texas. Of the (71) feminicides registered in October, (14) occurred in Antioquia, (6) in Atlántico, (6) in Norte de Santander, (5) in Bolívar, (5) in Valle del Cauca and (4) in Santander. With (3) records per department: Arauca, Casanare, Magdalena and Risaralda, With (2) records per department: Bogotá D.C, Boyacá, Cauca, Guajira and Nariño, With (1) record per department: Cesar, Cundinamarca, Huila, Meta, Putumayo, Quindío and Sucre.

VIVAS NOS QUEREMOS

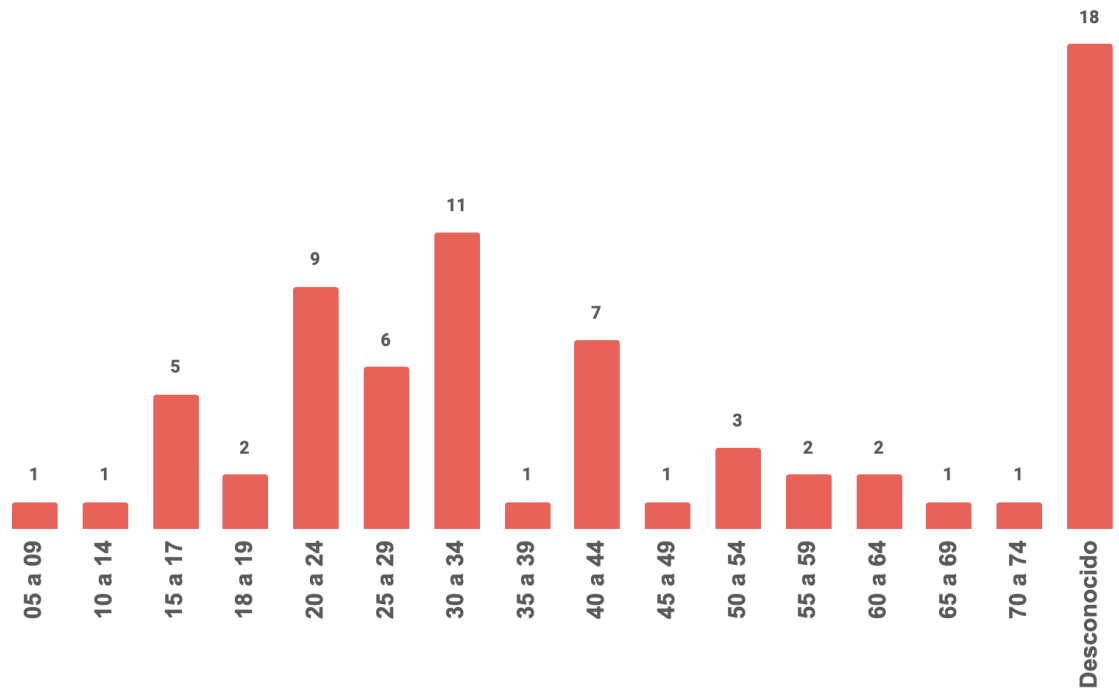

Geographical area where the feminicides were committed October 2024

The area where the (71) feminicides occurred during the month of October in Colombia was 64% urban and 36% rural. For (1) case there is no information on the area where the feminicide took place.

Age of the women who were victims of femicide October 2024

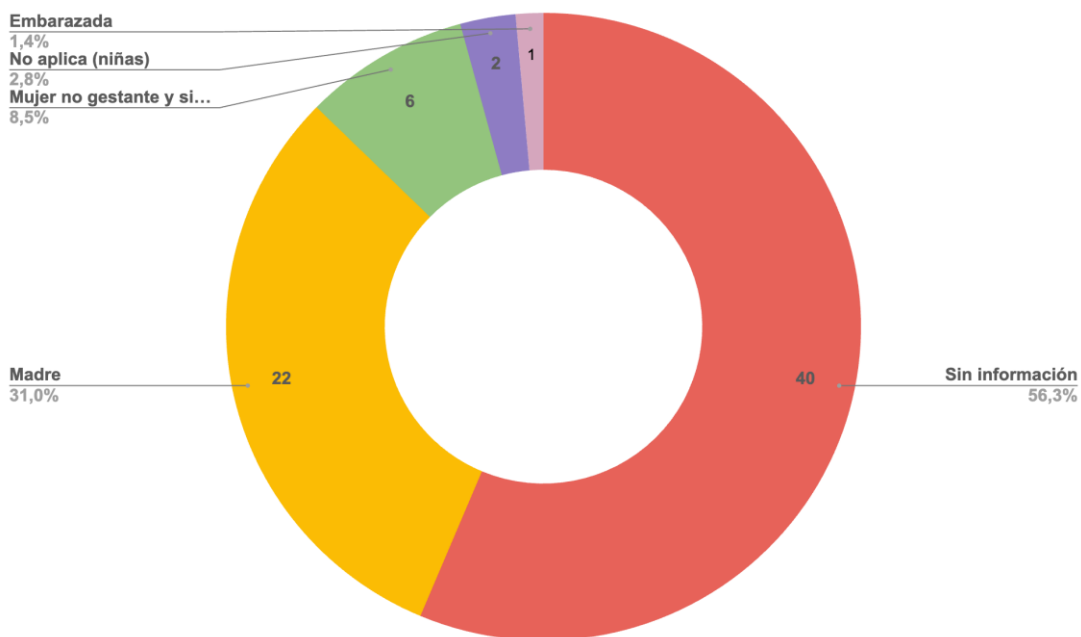

With regard to the age of the (71) women victims of femicide, the highest number of records, (11) femicides, occurred in women between 30 to 34 years old: with (9) records 20 to 24 years old, with (7) records 40 to 44 years old, with (6) records 25 to 29 years old, with (5) records 15 to 17 years old, with (3) records 50 to 54 years old, with (2) records by age range: 18 to 19 years, 55 to 59 years and 60 to 64 years, with (1) record by age range: 05 to 09 years, 10 to 14 years, 35 to 39 years, 45 to 49 years, 65 to 69 years and 70 to 74 years. Of (18) female victims of feminicide, the age is unknown.

Feminicides of young women and girls show how the limits of caring for the lives of those who should be at the center of society, politics and the state, are increasingly exceeded by the feminicidal subjects. This month we have (7) records of young women under 18 years of age.

Mothers and pregnant women who were victims of feminicide October 2024

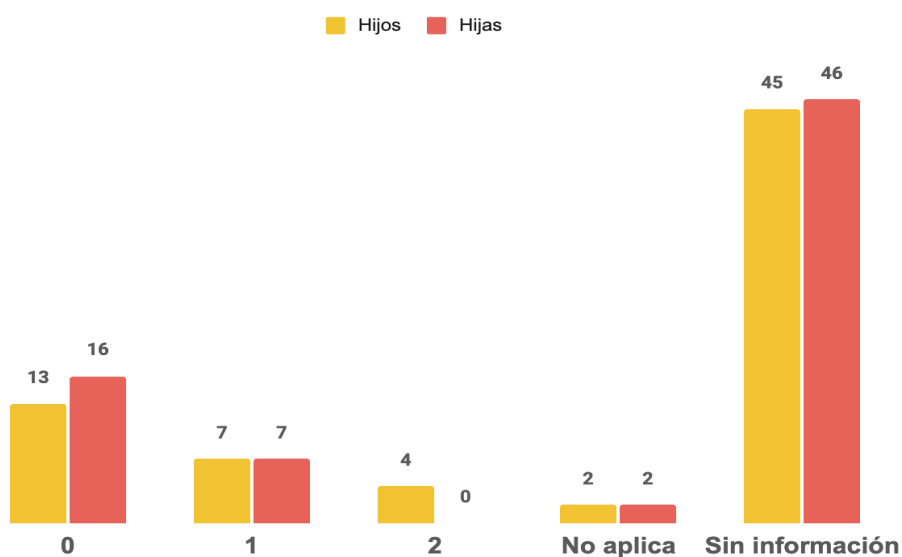

Women who care for life, who are mothers, continue to be attacked by neoliberal feminicidal violence. In October of (71) feminicides (22) were committed against women who were mothers, which corresponds to 31% of the feminicides. (6) women were not mothers and did not have sons and daughters and (1) woman was pregnant. No information on (40) records and (2) not applicable because they were female children.

What does the murder of women mothers imply for a society? These feminicides, in addition to showing the orphanhood of minor girls and boys left behind by feminicide, also reveal how the role of power and support for social reproduction played by women mothers loses value and respect in the patriarchal and neoliberal context.

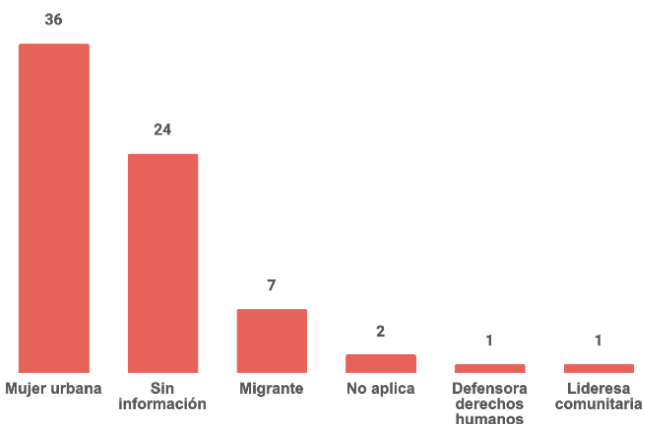

Number of minor children motherless due to feminicide October 2024

Of the (71) women murdered in October 2024, (13) had 0 sons and (16) had 0 daughters, (7) had 1 son and (7) had 1 daughter and (4) had 2 sons. In (45) records there is no information on the number of sons and in (46) on the number of daughters. In (2) case it does not apply because it is a girl.

16

Boys and girls lost their mothers due to neoliberal feminicidal violence registered in October 2024.

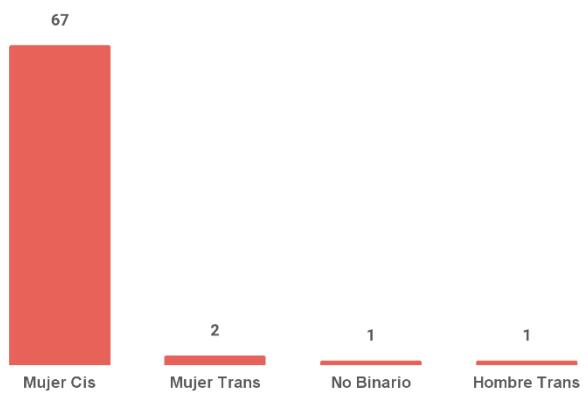

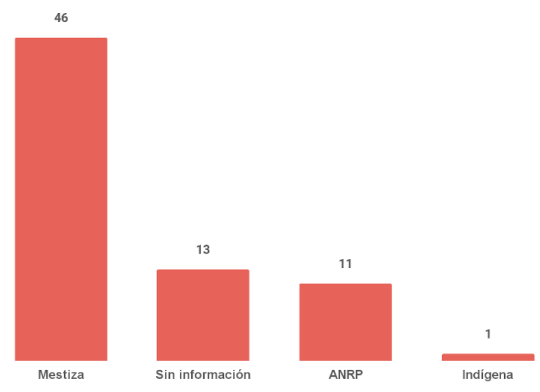

Identity of the women who were victims of femicide October 2024

Social identity

In the category we named social identity, out of (71) records (36) were urban women, (24) have no information, (7) were migrants, (1) was a community leader, (1) was a human rights defender and (2) do not apply.

Ethnic-racial belonging

The ethnic-racial belonging of the (71) women murdered in October (46) were mestizos, in (13) records there is no information, (11) were Afro-descendant, black, raizal and palenquero women² and (1) was an indigenous woman.

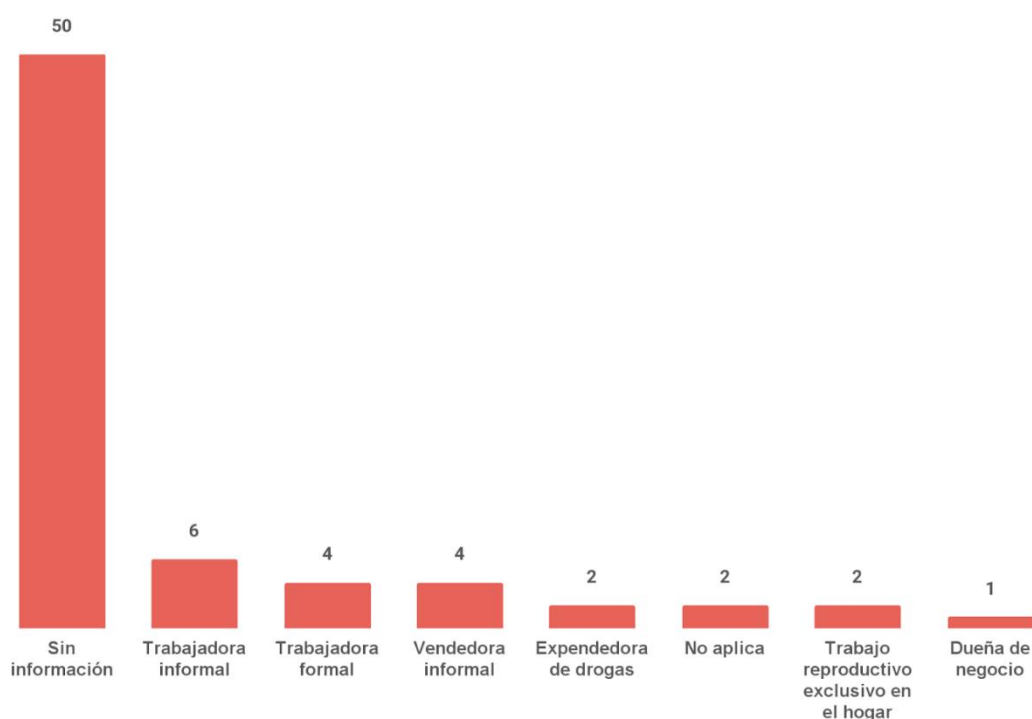

Gender Identity

With regard to gender identity of the (71) female victims of femicide in October, (67) were cisgender women, (2) were trans women, (1) was a trans man and (1) was a non-binary person.

² In the ethnic-racial graph, the feminicides of Afro-descendant, black, raizal and palenquero women are represented by the acronym ANRP..

Economic activity of the victims

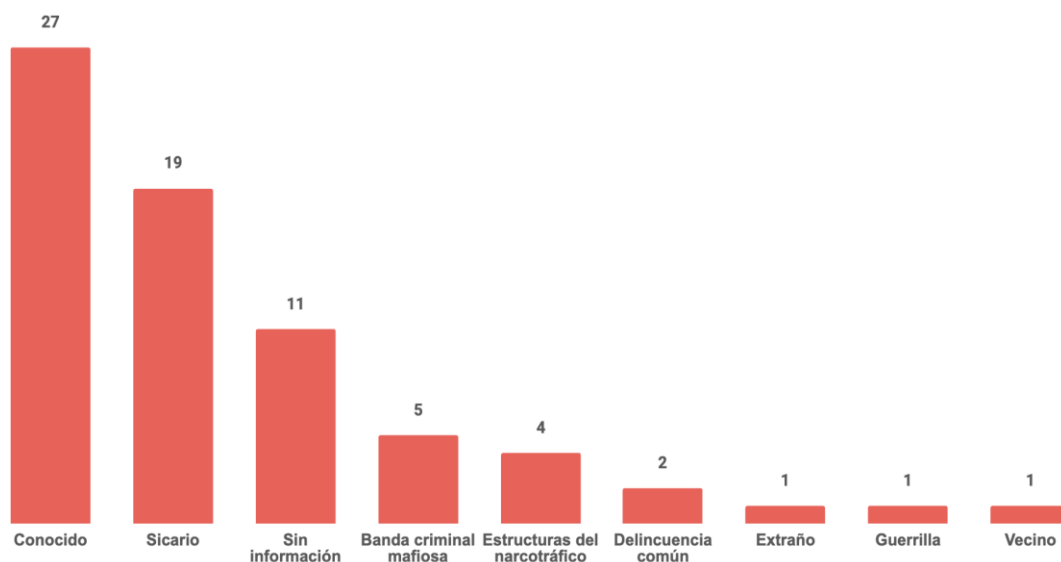

The economic activity of the (71) women murdered in October was: (6) were informal workers, (4) were informal vendors, (4) were formal workers, (2) performed reproductive work exclusively in the home, (2) did not apply because they were children, (2) were drug dealers and (1) were business owners. The (50) records without information continue to show that several media outlets focus on narrating the *spectacle of cruelty*³ to which the women were subjected, without being interested in narrating their lives, environments, jobs, etc.

³ The concept of the feminist anthropologist Rita Laura Segato is taken up again, who expresses “no es otra cosa que la propia capacidad de muerte y la insensibilidad extrema frente al sufrimiento” (Segato, 2013, pág. 55) that translates to: “it is nothing other than one’s own capacity for death and extreme insensitivity in the face of suffering”

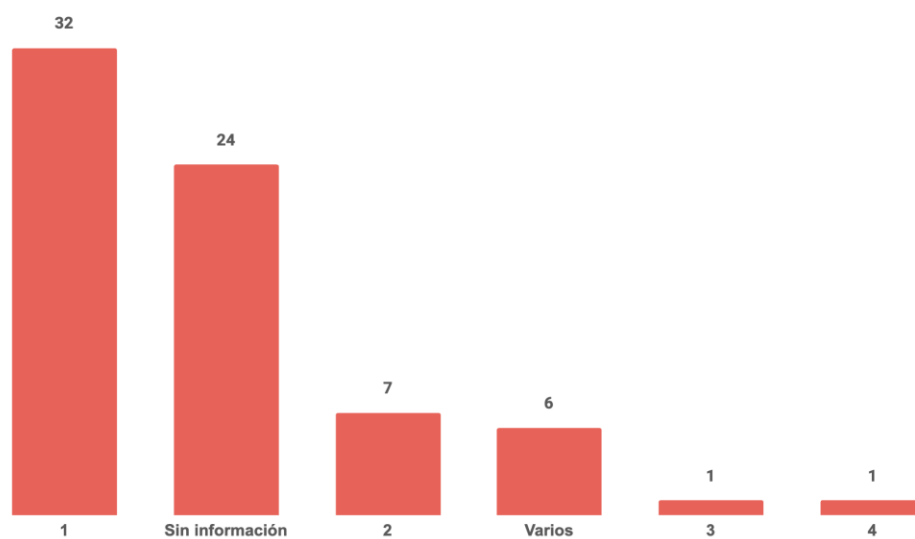

Feminicidal subject

In October 2024, of the (71) femicides committed, the femicide subjects with the highest number of records were (27) cases perpetrated by a known femicide subject and (19) by a hired assassin. (5) were committed by a mafia criminal gang, (4) by drug trafficking structures, (2) by common crime, with (1) record for each femicide subject: stranger, guerrilla and neighbor. In (11) records there is no information on the perpetrator.

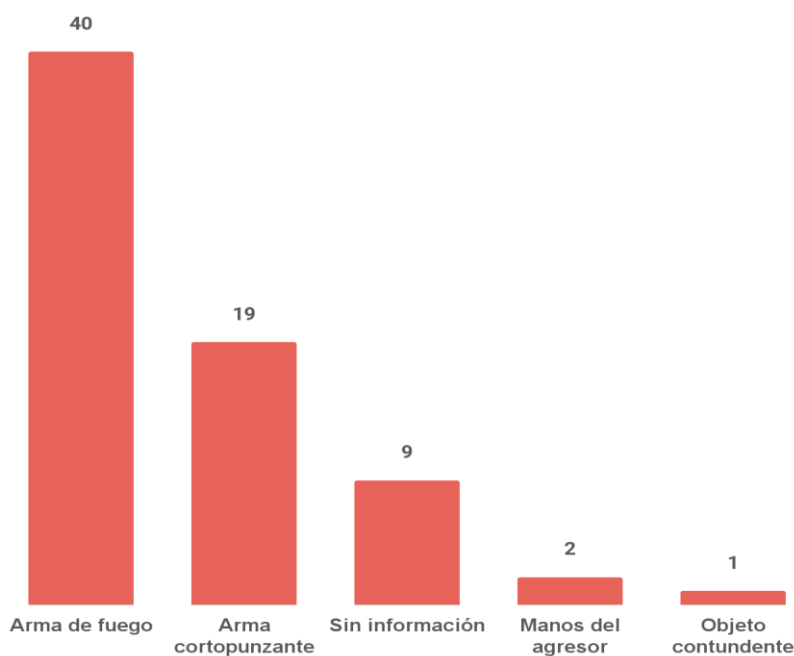

Number of feminicidal subjects

Feminicidal violence as an expression of power over women's bodies has been committed by men, both individually and in groups. In October 2024 (32) of the (71) femicidas were committed by 1 femicida subject, in (24) there is no information on the number of femicida subjects, (7) were committed by 2 subjects, (6) by several subjects, (1) by 3 subjects and (1) by 4 subjects.

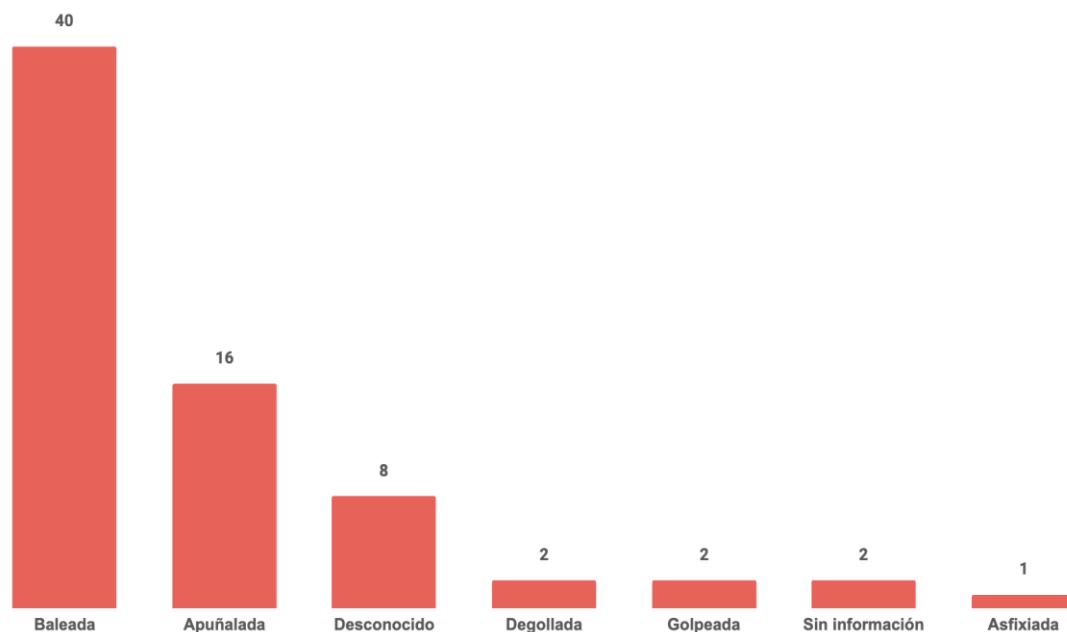

Weapon used to commit femicide

The relationship between militarization and the level of use of firearms to commit femicides in October continues to show a high tendency. In this month of 2024, of the (71) registered femicides, (40) were committed with firearms, that is 56% and (19) with a sharp weapon. There is no information available on (9), (2) with the aggressor's hands and (1) with a blunt object.

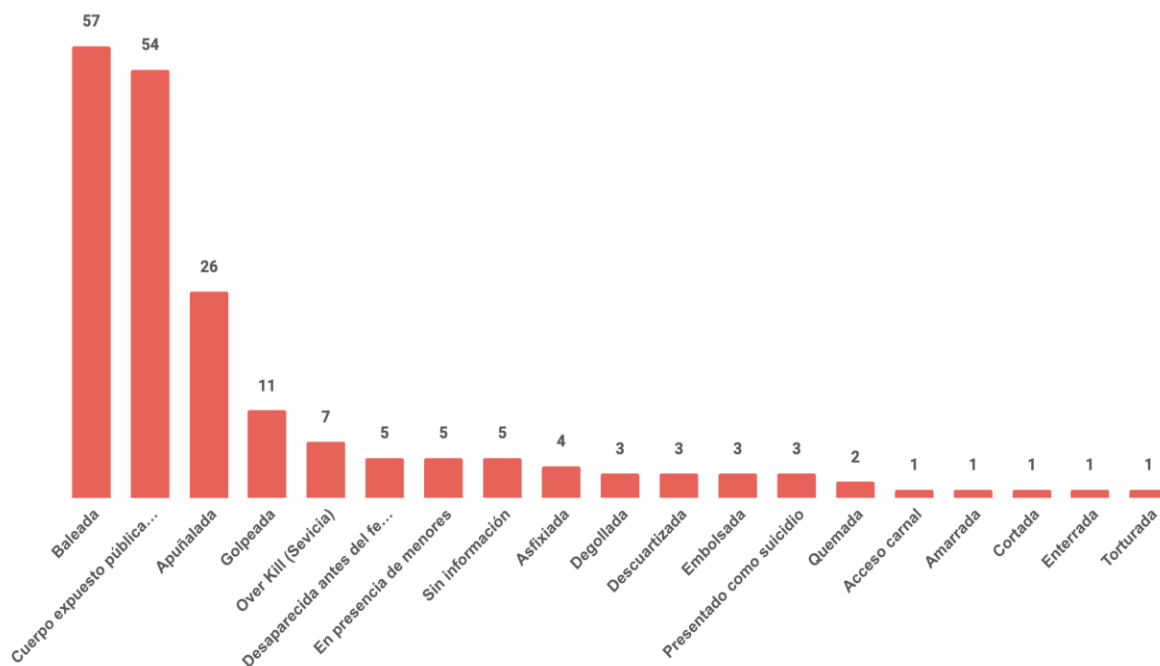

Method of elimination

The method of elimination is related to the weapon used, of the (71) femicides registered this month in (40) femicides the women were shot and in (16) records they were stabbed. With (2) records for each method of disposal: slit throat and beaten, in (1) record the woman was asphyxiated, in (2) no information is available and in (8) the method of disposal is unknown.

Violence associated with the femicide

Violence associated with femicide refers to the violence that the perpetrator or perpetrators inflict on the woman before committing the femicide and/or with her corpse. It is important to clarify that the number of associated violence does not coincide with the number of femicides, since a woman can be the victim of several forms of associated violence.

This month, in (57) of the (71) registered femicides the women were shot, in (54) the women's bodies were publicly exposed, in (26) they were stabbed, in (11) beaten, in (7) there was Over Kill (sevicia), with (5) records for each associated violence: missing before the femicide and in the presence of minors. In (4) cases the women were asphyxiated, with (3) records for each associated violence: slit throat, dismembered, bagged and presented as suicide, in (2) of the cases the women were burned, with (1) record for each associated violence: carnal access, tied up, cut, buried and tortured. For (5) records, there is no information on the associated violence.

Location of the crime

In October, of the (71) registered femicidas (17) were committed in the victim's home, (10) on urban roads, with (4) records for each place of the facts: on a street in the victim's neighborhood and commercial premises, with (3) records for each place of the facts: private transport and rural green area, with (2) records for each place of the facts: victim's workplace, intermunicipal road, rural road and a third party's house, with (1) record for each place of the facts: public sports area, another place, stream or river, public transport and the victimizer's house. In (15) records there is no information and in (2) the place where the femicide occurred is unknown.

Public space is the scene of exposure of lethal violence against women, and through this scene of death and cruelty, patriarchal power sends messages about its effectiveness and power of domination of social reproduction ⁴ and thus of social order.

Place where the body was found

⁴ The concept of social reproduction is taken up again, expressing that social reproduction is all the activities that sustain the lives of human beings as “seres sociales y encarnados, que no solo necesitan comer y dormir, sino también criar a sus hijos, preocuparse por sus familias y sostener sus comunidades, todo eso mientras buscan hacer realidad sus esperanzas para el futuro” (Cindia Arruza, 2019, pág. 99) which translates to “social and embodied beings, who not only need to eat and sleep, but also raise their children, care for their families and sustain their communities, all while seeking to realize their hopes for the future”

Some of the feminicides were committed in places other than where the women's bodies were recovered. Several femicide perpetrators have transported the bodies of the murdered women to other places seeking a higher level of impunity or exposure of the femicide. On other occasions, women and girls are found with vital signs and are taken to health centers where they later die.

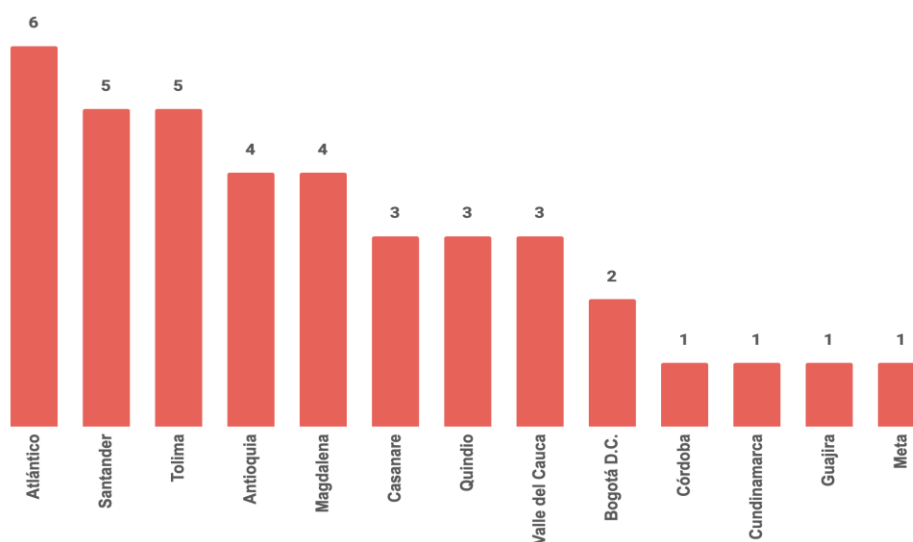

In October, of the (71) registered femicides (14) of the women victims were found in the victim's home, (13) in a medical center, (7) on an urban road, with (5) records for each place where the femicide was committed: stream or river, intermunicipal road and rural green zone, (3) were found on a street in the victim's neighborhood, with (2) records for each place where the femicide was committed: victim's workplace, another place, private transport, rural road and a third party's home, with (1) record for each place where the femicide was committed: commercial premises, public transport, victimizer's home and urban green area. In (5) records there is no information on the place where the body was found.

ATTEMPTED FEMINICIDES

In October there were (39) attempted feminicides in 13 of the 32 departments of Colombia, that is, in 40% of the national territory. That is, in 40% of the national territory, (39) women survived femicide violence. There were (6) in Antioquia, (5) in Santander, (5) in Tolima, (4) in Antioquia, (4) in Magdalena, with (3) records per department: Casanare, Quindío and Valle del Cauca, (2) in Bogotá D.C., with (1) record per department: Córdoba, Cundinamarca, Guajira and Meta.

Lines of interpretation

In the month of October (71) feminicides were committed in Colombia, (4) fewer feminicides than the previous month. The departments of Antioquia, Atlántico and Norte de Santander are the ones with the highest number of feminicides during this month. Taking into account the prevalence rate of feminicides of the 3 departments, 0.46 for Antioquia, 0.57 for Atlántico and 0.69 for Norte de Santander, we have that the department of Norte de Santander is positioned as the department with the highest recurrence of feminicides in the country this month.

(7) migrant women were victims of feminicide this month, (5) were women of Venezuelan nationality and (2) Colombian women murdered abroad, (2) Trans women were murdered in Antioquia, one of them was an Afro-descendant woman, (1) Trans man was murdered in Risaralda and (1) non-binary person in Santander.

(2) girls were murdered in October, in one of the cases the perpetrator was the father of the minor and in another a neighbor. (5) young underage women were murdered mostly by men known as stepfather, brother-in-law and ex-permanent partner.

Femicidal violence perpetuated with cruelty and directed particularly against girls in our country awakens every now and then the indignation of the media, political parties, media personalities and common people. The neighbors of the victim woman lynch the femicidal subject, some positions advocate the death penalty or life imprisonment, the rape of the femicidal subject by his cellmates is celebrated and the girl's mother is blamed for her murder after not taking enough care of her. After all this kind of guilt-releasing ritual, the femicide goes down in history as just another figure.

All these reactions bring with them political discourses and ideas of all kinds that seem to unite in a single voice, the protection of children's lives. However, this seemingly common ceiling is a mirage. The media, political parties and hegemonic right-wing media personalities support the death penalty, punitivism, the preservation of the incestuous and heteronormative family, defend to the hilt the idea of a State at the service of capital with lower wages and more labor burden for workers, the increase of the pension age, the privatization of health, housing and education. These are clearly anti-popular positions that in reality have nothing to do with protecting the lives of the girls who are being murdered, who are the daughters of working class women in our country. The defense of these positions has everything to do with the preservation and deepening of an old political, moral, economic, cultural and social order that keeps intact its class privileges in terms of accumulation of wealth and cultural hegemony.

The punitivist and moralizing perspective with which conservative sectors approach femicide violence in our country insists on approaching it as an individual problem that keeps intact the structures of domination and patterns of violence that generate femicides. It is a perspective that refuses to address inequality and seeks to take away the social rights of autonomy, freedom and justice that women, girls, young women, workers and sexual and gender diversities have fought for generations for themselves and their communities. These conservative sectors insist on protecting the family in its most violent version, the one that covers up sexual violence by the men of the family against women and disregard for creative, autonomous and thinking children.

The 745 women and girls murdered in Colombia in 2024 are much more than a figure to be repeated in different media, they are the lives of women and girls who no longer accompany us with their dreams, life projects and affections, they are the rupture of the most basic principle of community: that all life matters, be respected, preserved and cared for.

“The community of Monteria was shocked after finding the lifeless body of Monica Bustamante Giraldo, a 51-year-old teacher, reported missing since November 5. The teachers' union of Córdoba, through its union Ademacor, expressed its sorrow and asked the authorities for a thorough investigation of the facts. In its official statement, the union regretted the death of Bustamante Giraldo, highlighting her dedication to teaching and public education.”⁵

Femicidal violence in all its contexts generates multiple consequences. In cases where the perpetrators are fathers or stepfathers of the female victims, it perpetuates a vision that condemns women, girls and adolescents to be preyed upon and sexualized, requiring them to remain immobile before the incest and coercion of the males in their families.

“Liyen Moncada Cubides a 16 year old girl, who apparently died at the hands of her stepfather. He was obsessed with the girl. He did not want her to move to Bogotá. It is not known what happened, if there was a struggle, but after a while of the man's excitement, the shot was heard. People in the community say that the young woman had already denounced him for sexual abuse more than 5 years ago. However, the authorities have not commented on the matter.”⁶

The femicide of young women perpetuated by unknown men or neighbors produces panic and uncertainty that causes people in charge of the girls' care to restrict them from inhabiting the public space they are accustomed to living in, such as their neighborhood. It generates distrust and fragments the spaces for the creation of bonds and collective relationships.

⁶ <https://www.eltiempo.com/colombia/santander/feminicidio-en-santander-encontraron-en-cuerpo-de-una-joven-de-16-anos-el-presunto-responsable-es-su-padrastro-3394071>

“After having been missing for 18 days, new details come to light in the case that has shocked Colombia. Brayan Campo is the name of the confessed murderer of the crime. Neighbor of the Delgado family in the town of Villagorgona, a few kilometers from the city of Cali, this 32-year-old man kidnapped the minor on September 29, killed her and transported her body to a gully. On September 29, Sofia left her home in Villagorgona to buy food for her pet. The store, which belongs to Campo, was a few blocks away. A security camera shows the girl on her way to the store where, according to the alleged perpetrator in his account - accessed by Semana magazine - he locked her up and subsequently hit her on the head.”⁷

The majority of working women support their homes while caring for their daughters, nieces or sisters; some do not have support networks that can take care of them while they are absent.

Confronting the situation of femicidal violence we live in is only possible with the State and therefore with institutions that put life at the center, with the reconstruction of community ties, with the raising of autonomous, free and happy children, with the breaking of silence, complicity and impunity, with the daily doing and gathering. Neither individual and privatized action, nor fear as a mobilizing emotion, nor violence as an action to stop the depredation produced by patriarchal, racist and neoliberal structures are the solution to what is happening to us as a society at this time.
